Our Clothes Back Up Our Advertising

A CLOTHIER'S mere desire to serve his patrons well—to give them the best value for their money amounts to nothing—unless his stock of merchandise is able to back up his good intentions.

The man who has been disappointed elsewhere probably suffered more from lack of expert judgment in buying on the clothier's part than from any ill intentions to give him less than his money's worth.

You will find here, not only a robust desire to serve your best interests carefully and well, but you will find the largest and most complete stock of strictly new clothes in this vicinity to select from

MUNICIPALITY OF MOUNTAIN VIEW

WEEDS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the farmers of Mountain View Municipality that the Weed Act will be STRICTLY enforced during 1914. It has been noticed that weeds have been abnormally spreading year by year, and in order to check their growth or exterminate them, drastic measures must be taken in the public interest to check or eradicate them. Those who have weeds upon their land should plan before seeding the best way of freeing their land from them. Either summer-fallow or sow for green feed with the intention of cutting before the weed seed can ripen. If it is found that weeds are in your crop grown for grain you may expect to be compelled to hand pull them. It would be considered a favor if every farmer would send an unsigned postal card to the Secretary stating thereon the quarter sections in his neighborhood where he knows weeds are prevalent and also state the kind of weeds.

BY ORDER OF THE COUNCIL.

Parker Reed, the Secretary-Manager, has had a large experience in in-

New Insurance Co.
Formed in Didsbury

A meeting of some importance was held in the office of Reed Bros & Paton on Friday afternoon last when the final steps were taken to form The Western Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Didsbury, Alta. The current issue of the Alberta Gazette contains the notice that the Certificate of Incorporation has been filed with the following named gentlemen as provisional directors: H. E. Pearson, C. F. Rennie, Peter T. Johnston, H. B. Atkins, E. B. Shantz, Wm. Rupp and Eph. Gabel all of Didsbury; the head office is to be at Didsbury and the liability of the members of the Company is limited. The first general meeting of the company is to be held in Didsbury on May 15th.

At the meeting held last week H. B. Atkins was elected President, Peter Johnston, Vice-President, T. W. Cannon, Treasurer, and Parker Reed Secretary Manager. A great deal of preliminary business was transacted and the new company started off in style.

Parker Reed, the Secretary-Manager, has had a large experience in insurance work and the company have chosen well in their selection for this important position in the company.

The company is owned and operated by the farmers and is strictly co-operative and will be ready to do business on Monday next. The province will be thoroughly organized well within four months and some of the largest agencies in the province, who have taken a very great interest in the organization of this company, have signified their intention of taking on their business.

It is expected that the company will be doing a large business in the near future as the need of such an insurance company is widely felt in the west, and if the business proves as successful as its promoters expect it will bring an amount of advertising to this town and district that will be of an incalculable benefit, and will also mean that Didsbury will have another addition to its business community that may prove of great credit to the town which it should with the above well known gentlemen at its head.

Any person wishing to get rates or other information concerning the new company will do well to call on Parker Reed. Whitley & Redding of Calgary are the general agents.

You Can't Earn Money
When You're Laid Up

There are a lot of people in this town who cannot afford to be sick. Perhaps none of you feel that you can, but certainly some of you can't, for as soon as you are sick, your wages stop and worry and debts begin to pile up. The sensible thing for you to do, as soon as you feel run-down and worn out, no matter what the cause, is to take something just as quick as you can to build up strength and health. Make yourself more comfortable and provide against serious sickness.

We don't believe there is any other medicine made that will do as much towards saving your health and thus helping you save your money as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a medicine that gets right at the trouble and relieves it by toning the nerves, enriching the blood, and giving new strength and health to the whole body. It doesn't do this by means of alcohol or habit-forming drugs, because it contains none. Its strength and health-giving power is due to pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites, long endorsed by successful physicians, the one for its food value, the other for its tonic value. Here, for the first time, they are combined, and the result is a real nerve, blood and body-building medicine—a real strengthener that we are proud to tell you about. You don't need to hesitate in using it, because if it doesn't do all we say it will and satisfy you in every way, it will cost you nothing. If it doesn't make you strong and well again, come back and get your money. It will be given to you without word or question. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. H. W. Chambers, Didsbury.

It Was a Famous Victory

Those of the town daddies and the ratepayers who had been living in horrible suspense the last few weeks seeing blueruin and a terrible catastrophe if the by-law for $8,000 for completion of electric light plant (which had already been spent) did not pass rested their weary heads in peace on Friday night last after the results of the election became known. The ratepayers evidently looked at the matter in the right light and decided that Didsbury should at least not be burdened with an extra heavy taxation for the next year or two especially considering the condition of affairs caused by the fires. The vote stood 59 for the by-law and 4 against, the total number of votes cast being 63. This was considered a very good vote taking into consideration the fact that only registered property owners had a vote and that a large number of these were out of town.

Guaranteed Relief
From All Bowel Ills

If your bowels are out of order, instead of using some harsh salt or other physic, take a Rexall Orderly tonight, and tomorrow you will feel great. They taste good and act so easily that there isn't a particle of griping or purging, nor the excessive looseness that follows the taking of salts and most pills. They soothe and strengthen the bowels, promptly relieving the constipation, making it unlikely to occur again.

We don't believe there is any other bowel remedy anywhere near as good, and at the same time so easy and pleasant to take as Rexall Orderlies. We know you will agree with us and believe you will thank us for telling you about them. If they don't satisfy you in every way, come back and tell us and we will give back your money without a word or question. You have no reason to hesitate when we give you the opportunity, as we hereby do, to try them at our risk. In vest pocket tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50c.

You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores, and in this town only of us. H. W. Chambers, Didsbury.

The best reason for using paint outside is because of the fact that it protects your property against the wear and tear of the weather.

Of course it improves the appearance too, and adds much to market value if you wish to sell, but the chief reason is that the building that is kept painted keeps in good condition.

We are Agents for Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes. The makers of these paints have studied the principals of paint protection for years and so every Sherwin-Williams product wears well, and looks well.

There is economy in using good paint, so come and talk to us about — Sherwin-Williams Paint (Prepared) SWP for your buildings—S-W Porch Floor Paint for verandahs and porch floors—S-W Wagon Paint for wagons and implements—S-W Buggy Paint for buggies, automobiles, porch furniture, boats, canoes, etc.

THE WINDOW AT THE WHITE CAT

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

She didn't mind it. Speaking as nearly as possible from an impersonal standpoint, I doubt if she was even surprised. You see, the ring was gone, and it had only been an engagement ring anyhow, and everybody knows how binding they are.

And then an angel with a burning sword came and scourged me out of my Eden, and the angel was Burton, and the sword was a dripping umbrella.

"I hate to take you out," he said. "The bottom's dropped out of the sky, but I want you to make a little experiment with me." He caught sight of Margery through the portieres.

"Don't be an ass," I said angrily. "I don't know that I care to go out tonight."

"Let's go and take a look at the staircase you fellows have been talking about," he said. "I don't believe there is a staircase there except the main one. I have hounded every politician in the city into or out of that joint, and I have never heard of it."

"Lightning never strikes twice in the same place," said Margery bravely. "I will ask Katie to come down with me if I am nervous, and I shall wait up for the family."

I went without enthusiasm. Margery's departure had been delayed for a day only, and I had counted on the evening with her. Burton's idea was to go over the ground at the White Cat again.

"I don't hang so much to this staircase idea," Burton said, "and I have a good reason for it. I think we will find it is the warehouse, yet."

"You can depend on it, Burton," I maintained, "that the staircase is the place to look. If you had seen Wardrop's face today and his agony of mind when he knew he had associated 'staircase' with 'shot,' you would think just as I do. A man like Schwartz, who knew the ropes, could go quietly up the stairs, unbolt the door into the room, shoot Fleming and get out. Wardrop suspects Schwartz, and he's afraid of him."

"Suppose the stairs open into the back of the room? He was sitting facing the window. Do you think Schwartz would go in, walk around the table and shoot him from in front? Poo!"

"He had a neck," I retorted. "I suppose he might have turned his head to look around."

We had been walking through the rain. The White Cat, as far off as the poles socially, was only a half dozen blocks actually from the best residence portion of the city. We had stopped near the arched gate where I had stood and waited for Hunter a week before. Suddenly Burton darted away from me and I heard him splashing through a puddle in the gloomy yard.

"Come in!" he called softly. "The water's fine!"

The gate swung to behind me, and I could not see six inches from my nose. Burton steered me toward the building.

"If it isn't locked too tight," he was saying, "we can get in, perhaps through a window, and get upstairs. From there we ought to be able to see down into the club. What the devil's that?"

It was a rat, I think and it scrambled away among the loose boards in a frenzy of excitement. Burton struck a match. It burned faintly in the dampness and in a moment went out, having shown us only the approximate location of the heavy railed double doors. A second match showed us a bar and a rusty padlock. There was no entrance to be gained in that way.

The windows were of the eight pane variety and in better repair than the ones on the upper floors. We found one unlocked and not entirely closed. It shrieked hideously as we pried it up, but an opportune clap of thunder covered the sound.

While Burton held the window I crawled into the warehouse and turned to perform the same service for him. At first I could not see him outside. Then I heard his voice, a whisper.

"Duck," he said. "Cop."

CHAPTER XVII.

In the Room Over the Way

I dropped below the window, and above the rain I could hear the squash of the watchman's boots in the mud. He flashed a night lamp in at the window next to ours, but he was not very near, and the open window escaped his notice. I felt all the nervous dread of a real malefactor, and when I heard the gate close behind him and saw Burton put a leg over the sill I was almost as relieved as I would have been had somebody's family plate, ted up in a tablecloth, been reposing on the feet.

Unlike the first floor, the second was subdivided into rooms. It took a dozen precious matches to find our way to the side of the building overlooking the club and another dozen to find the window we wanted. When we were there at last Burton leaned his elbows on the sill and looked down and across.

"Could anything be better?" he said. "There's our theatre, and we've got a proscenium box. That room over there stands out like a spot light."

He was right. Not more than fifteen feet away and perhaps a foot lower than our window was the window of the room where Fleming had been killed. It was empty as far as we could see. The table, neat enough now, was where it had been before, directly under the light. Any one who sat there would be an illuminated target from our window. Not only that, but an arm could be steadied on the sill, allowing for an almost perfect aim.

"Now where's your staircase?" Burton jeered.

Above the rattle of the rain came the thump, thump of the piano and a half dozen male voices. We could see nothing.

I think it was then that Burton had his inspiration.

"I'll bet you a five dollar bill," he said, "that if I fire off my revolver here now not one of those fellows down there would pay the slightest attention."

"I'll take that bet," I returned. "I'll wager that every time anybody drops a poker since Fleming was shot the entire club turns out to investigate."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said Burton. "Everybody down there knows me. I'll drop in for a bottle of beer, and you fire a shot into the floor here or into somebody across, if you happen to see any one you don't care for. I suggest that you stay and fire the shot, because if you went, my friend, and nobody heard it, you would accuse me of shooting from the back of the building somewhere."

He gave me the revolver and left me with a final instruction.

"Wait for ten minutes," he said. "It will take five for me to get out of here, and five more to get into the clubhouse. Perhaps you'd better make it fifteen."

He went away into the darkness, and I sat down on an empty box by the window and waited. Had any one asked me at that minute how near we were to the solution of our double mystery I would have said we had made no progress, save by eliminating Wardrop. Not for one instant did I dream that I was within less than half an hour of a revelation that changed my whole conception of the crime. I had an idea that it would be hard to explain my position, alone in the warehouse, firing a revolver into the floor, if my argument was right, and the club should rouse to a search. I looked again at my watch.

Every one who has counted the passing of seconds knows how they drag. With my eyes on the room across, and my finger on the trigger, I waited as best I could. At ten minutes I was conscious there was some one in the room over the way. And then he came into view from the side somewhere, and went to the table. He and his back to me, and I could only see that he was a large man, with massive shoulders and dark hair.

It was difficult to make out what he was doing. After a half minute, however, he stepped to one side, and I saw that he had lighted a candle and was systematically reading and then burning certain papers, throwing the charred fragments on the table. With the same glance that told me that, I knew the man. It was Schwartz.

I was so engrossed in watching him that when he came directly to the window I stood perfectly still staring at him. With the light at his back I felt certain I had been discovered, but I was wrong. He shook the newspaper that had held the fragments out of the window, lighted a cigarette and turned back into the room.

He was not alone, for he addressed some one in the room behind.

"You are sure you got them all?" he said.

It Might Have Happened Anyway

A certain minister was greatly disturbed by a number of women in his congregation who persistently gossiped in a loud tone during service. One Sunday morning he executed a plan which he had devised to stop this annoyance.

At a given signal the choir stopped abruptly on a certain word in the middle of a hymn. Then one of the gossips, unable to check herself, was heard all over the church to say: "I always fry mine in lard."

"As we know," announced the minister, "that she always fries her's in lard, we will proceed with the singing."

THE SECRET OF GOOD DIGESTION

In perfect health, with regular and healthful action of the liver and kidneys, you need not know there is such a thing as digestion or indigestion. Unfortunately, however, modern life is artificial, and not many people avoid suffering more or less from troubles of this nature.

The great secret lies in keeping the liver and kidneys in health and vigor, for then the food is passed quickly along the alimentary canal, the nutritive portions being assimilated in the blood stream and the poisoned waste materials are passed out of the body.

When the liver and kidneys get wrong you will obtain relief most promptly and effectively by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If chronic indigestion is to be cured it must be by enlivening the action of these filtering and excretory organs. To persons who have thought only of the stomach as being the offending organ this may seem strange, but any competent physician will tell you this is correct.

Has Advanced Ideas

Contrary to the precedents established by the former emperors of Japan, the present ruler, Yoshihito, is entirely modern in all of his ideas relating to his home. The present emperor has equipped the imperial palace throughout with electric lights; he takes a decided interest in amateur photography, and has shown modern tendencies in many other ways.

At one time in Holland prejudice against color was carried so far that the sale of carrots and oranges was forbidden.

WANTED TO KNOW

The Truth About Grape-Nuts Food

It doesn't matter so much what you hear about a thing, it's what you know that counts. And correct knowledge is most likely to come from personal experience.

"About a year ago," writes an Eastern man, "I was bothered by indigestion, especially during the forenoon. I tried several remedies without any permanent improvement.

"My breakfast usually consisted of oatmeal, steak or chops, bread, coffee and some fruit.

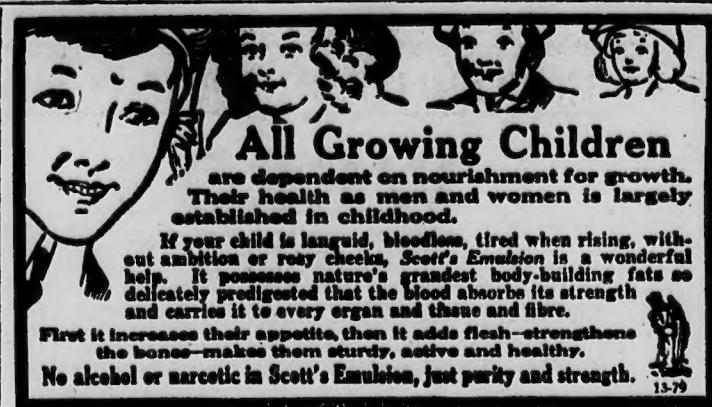

"Hearing so much about Grape-Nuts, I concluded to give it a trial and find out if all I had heard of it was true.

"So I began with Grape-Nuts, cream, soft boiled eggs, toast, a cup of Postum and some fruit. Before the end of the first week I was rid of the acidity of the stomach and felt much relieved.

"By the end of the second week all traces of indigestion had disappeared and I was in first rate health once more. Before beginning this course of diet, I never had any appetite for lunch, but now I can enjoy the meal at noon time."

All Growing Children

are dependent on nourishment for growth. Their health as men and women is largely established in childhood.

If your child is languid, bloodless, tired when rising, without ambition or rosy cheeks, Scott's Emulsion is a wonderful help. It possesses nature's grandest body-building fats so delicately predigested that the blood absorbs its strength and carries it to every organ and tissue and fibre.

First it increases their appetite then it adds flesh—strengthens the bones—makes them sturdy, active and healthy.

No alcohol or narcotic in Scott's Emulsion, just purity and strength.

Boys and Sleep

One thing a growing boy wants to be long on is sleep, and yet he is most apt to be careless about it. It is during sleep that a boy grows most and catches up. During his waking hours he tears down and burns up more tissue than he builds. Good, sound and sufficient sleep is essential to growth, strength and endurance. A boy scout should have at least nine or ten hours of sleep out of every twenty-four. If you lose out on this amount on one day make it up the next. Whenever unusually tired out or when you feel out of trim stay in bed a few hours more if it is possible. A boy should wake up each morning feeling like a fighting cock. When he doesn't he ought to get to bed earlier that night. Sleep is a wonderful restorative and tonic. It helps to store up energy and conserve strength.—Boy Scouts of America."

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and if it is entirely closed, the result is deafness. The tube can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Steam For the Soil

For some time certain growers of tomatoes, cucumbers, and similar vegetables for the London market have been injecting steam into the soil with a view to destroying certain insects and slugs. It is reported that the plan works very well for that purpose, but the operator has brought to light an unexpected fact: namely, that the soil thus treated increased greatly in fertility, so greatly, in fact, that the ordinary amount of manure cannot be used afterward.

This effect has been explained as being due to the sterilization produced by the steam, which kills the phagocytes or protozoa which in ordinary circumstances keep down the number of bacteria in the soil whose operations are beneficial in turning organic nitrogen into a form suitable for plant food.

The Man In Seedy Clothes

How a Famous Gambling Resort Came to Be Discontinued

By F. A. MITCHEL

Half a century ago the celebrated gambling house at Monte Carlo did not exist. At that time Baden Baden was the center of attraction for those who wished to "buck the tiger." The building devoted to the purpose was not as splendid as that now at Monte Carlo, but it was a handsome one for those times.

One night a man of mean appearance entered the spacious gambling hall at Baden Baden, shambled up to the table and stood behind those enclosing it looking at the game. His eyesight seemed to be sensitive, for he wore colored glasses. His clothing was shabby, and his appearance was by no means improved by his beard, which was long and scraggly.

After watching the game for awhile he pushed his way to a seat beside the table that had been left vacant by a woman who had lost all her money and had nothing for a stake. On the stranger's left was a German baron, who, looking aside at his new neighbor and not relishing the proximity of such a looking man, gathered up the coins before him and withdrew.

The seedy individual drew from his pocket a purse, from which he took a few gold pieces and distributed them over the numbers he wished to cover. The wheel was spun, the ball rattled about in the inclosure, and the croupier announced what had won and what had lost. The stranger was ahead on his bets. The next time he lost, and next won and continued to win and lose, his winnings usually equaling his losses.

At the table directly opposite the newcomer sat a young man, whom a number of the players recognized as a member of the ducal court. He was known to be talented and a favorite with his sovereign. Much of his time was spent at the gaming table, and report said that a splendid estate he possessed was gradually being transferred to others through the roulette table. On this occasion he was playing feverishly, risking large sums and usually losing.

At last he had nothing more to lose and sat with his hat drawn down over his eyes, doubtless to conceal his emotion, looking fixedly on the red where he had lost his last stake.

At the moment a handsomely dressed woman entered the hall with a hasty step and approached the table evidently looking for some one. Seeing the nobleman, she went to him, stood behind him and was about to lay a hand on his shoulder when the seedy individual opposite pushed a handful of gold pieces in front of his vis-a-vis. Whether the latter did not understand that an offer of a loan had been made him or whether he declined to accept a favor from one of such disreputable appearance none could tell. But he continued to gaze as before on the red, making no motion to use the proffered coins. Then the man who had made the offer partly rose, reached across the table and placed the money he had offered on a spot where if it was it would win 5 to 1.

This incident held the hand of the lady behind the nobleman, and instead of letting it fall where she had intended she waited. The wheel was spun; the ball rattled, and, being at last caught in one of the receptacles, the croupier announced the result. A dozen gold pieces that the seedy man had placed for his vis-a-vis were covered by sixty pieces of the same denomination.

All eyes were fixed on the winner to see what he would do. Would he accept his winnings? If so would he repay the loan? Would he replace his new stake? Would he leave the whole amount where it was?

He answered these questions by doing nothing. He made no motion. His hat concealed the upper part of his face so that no one could see what he expressed. Since he did not withdraw his winnings it was assumed that he would leave them where they were. If he lost he would lose the whole amount; if he won he would win five times the sixty or 300 gold pieces.

The direction "Make your bets" was given, and the wheel was twirled. By this time those about the table had largely lost interest in their own bets in the more absorbing diversion of watching this reckless player, who seemed resolved to risk all on one turn of the wheel. The ball rattled louder than ever in the surrounding silence. The hub continued till the croupier announced that the 5 to 1 bet had won again, then burst forth a din of exclamations.

The only impassive person at the table was the winner. He made no sign of excitement, did not extend a hand toward the gold that was poured on to the table for him to take up. The seedy man who was the cause of all this good fortune had ceased to bet, being apparently intent upon the person he had befriended. But his features, too, were concealed, the principal one, his eyes, being covered by the colored glasses.

The exclamations of the onlookers were succeeded by another hub. Could it be possible that the winner would leave what now amounted to nearly $2,000 of our money where it was, taking the chances again of losing all or winning five times the amount? The silence was broken by a soft voice coming from the woman standing behind the object of all this interest:

"Carl, hadn't you better take up some of your winnings?"

There was no reply—at least none was heard, for at that moment the ball rattled again.

For the third time the five to one won.

What was before mingled exclamations was now a hubbub. The heap of coins would be too large for the spot covered, and an I O U was laid on the pile. The seedy man sat stolidly looking at the man for whom he had rendered possible these winnings, but he made no protest against tempting fate further.

"Oh, Carl!" cried the woman behind the gambler. "Don't! Please don't risk it all again."

But the appeal was disregarded. The spinner of the wheel waited a few moments, but, receiving no sign that the money on the five to one spot would be changed, twirled it, and again the croupier announced that the bank had lost.

Something like $30,000 had now accrued to the credit of the winner. The woman behind him put her arms about his neck, with her face close to his. It was noticed that she shuddered. The seedy man opposite arose with his eyes glued to the couple before him. Then the woman gave a shriek.

Some one pulled the gambler's hat off. A burst of horror followed the uncovering of a face that bore the pallor of death, eyes that were fixed in a vacuous stare on the pile of gold before them. The woman fainted and was carried out of the room by one party of attendants, while the dead gambler was carried out by another. These two objects of interest having been removed, the crowd looked about for the man with the threadbare clothes who had furnished the original stake.

He had disappeared.

While the excitement, the horror, was at its height he was leaving the gambling hall and, passing out of the gardens in which the building stood, called a cab, got in and to the driver, who bent down to hear to what point he wished to be driven, said:

"To the palace of the grand duke."

Stopping before a door in the rear of the building the "fare" turned him over to a lackey for his pay and hurried upstairs. Entering one of the apartments, he summoned attendants who divested him of his clothes and handed him others.

"Send for the Count de —" he said. The Count de — was the prime minister. In half an hour he appeared at the palace and was ushered into an apartment where the grand duke was awaiting him.

"Count," said the latter, "Baden Baden must cease to be a gambling hell."

"One of our brightest young men, Baron Carl Steinforth, whom I have intended for a high position, has recently—so I heard—been losing his patrimony. Knowing that he has frequented the Casino every day and evening, I went there tonight in disguise partly to see him for myself and partly to look upon what is going on there. I was present when he staked and lost his last coin. I put up a stake for him, which he did not notice, and I now believe he was dead at the time I offered it. I placed it for him where it would win, and it did win several times in succession. The baroness, his wife, came in to look for him doubtless to get him away at the moment I put up the stake. She waited while he won, then discovered the truth. She was carried out of the hall unconscious; her husband was carried out a corpse.

"I desire that you immediately take steps to recall the gambling privileges accorded to this nefarious concern. Let it be your first business on the morrow."

Such is the story of the recall of the license for gambling at Baden Baden as I heard it told by one who had been intimate with members of the grand ducal court. Had it not (the gambling) been transferred to Monte Carlo Europe would have got rid of a central point for gamblers. As it is, the business was simply moved from one point to another. But Germany is fortunate in putting it off her territory.

A Socialist State.

New Zealand has the reputation of being one of the most progressive countries in the world. There is practically no poverty which is not the result of laziness or drink. There are no millionaires and no slums. New Zealand is two-thirds the area of California. It has a European population of 1,000,000, almost wholly of British descent, and a Maori population of about 40,000.

The laws of these islands have become known throughout the world because of the advanced reforms they are supposed to promote. Primary education is free, secular and compulsory up to a prescribed standard, with free books, free travel on the railways for the children attending school, and where there are no railroads an allowance for conveyance by vehicle or ferry or for board of pupils in the vicinity of the school.

Lives of infants are protected by taking them from hard and unnatural conditions and placing them with approved private families. There is a national endowment of 9,000,000 acres for education and old age pensions, besides 2,000,000 for special purposes of various educational institutions.

Public utilities are either nationalized or municipalized, including railroads, harbors, postal and telegraph service, parcel post, postal savings banks, street cars, telephones, gas, electricity, water and other things. There are nearly 3,000 miles of railway and only 29 miles are owned privately.

Married to Kangaroo.

At the recent Church Congress in the Old Country, a speaker complained of the lack of information respecting the Empire at home. He said he had read of a poor woman who, when shown a kangaroo at the Zoo, told that it was a native of Australia, replied, "Good gracious, and my daughter is married to one of them."

This reminds us of the story of the Irish emigrants who went to the West Indies. They got on so well that a year or two later they sent and induced more Irish folk to emigrate.

When the second batch arrived they were greeted by a crowd of blacks who greeted them with such homely words as "Begorra!" and so on. "What! black already?" was the amazed comment of the newcomers.

Mayoral Election Customs.

The election of mayors in England in November is in some places accompanied by quaint ceremonies. The Mayor of Lincoln, for instance, is inducted by placing on his finger an ancient ring.

At Cheltenham the mayor is presented with a gold-headed mace and, at Grantham the new citizen is gravely tapped on the head with the town clerk's hammer.

From time immemorial the Mayor of Brightlingsea has been elected by the burgesses of the parish church, whilst at Bournemouth the new mayor receives a solemn kiss from his predecessor.

A Compromise.

The vicar of Leeds, Eng., Dr. Bickerton, tells of a clergyman who rang him up on the telephone to ask if he would consent to his taking a marriage service in which the word "obey" was left out. He replied that he was not the bishop, but was tolerably certain that the bishop would not allow him to omit the word.

"But who is the lady going to marry?" he inquired.

The answer was, "She is going to marry a doctor."

He then asked, "Would she mind if you put in the word 'consult' instead?"

Virtue of Hospitality.

Hospitality solves and annuls even the mysterious antagonisms that exist between races. This glorious and beautiful and sacred rite makes all men brothers. — Exchange.

If some felt the pain they thoughtfully give to others they would never feel well.

PRIMITIVE FOOTBALL.

The Original Game Was Played With Heads of Danes.

Football is an ancient pastime, says an exchange. The old Teutons are credited with founding the game by playing with the bleached skulls of their enemies. Preliminary practice was first heard of in Chester, Eng., where the old English had sufficiently brutalized the game to give rise to many adverse criticisms, fragments of which have survived to the present day.

Legend has it that in 962, during the Danish invasion of England, a good man of Chester captured a Dane, beheaded him and knocked his head out into the street to furnish sport for the "fellows." The game of kicking the head around the city streets and even outside the walls of the ancient Roman-built city grew in favor. The exercise was indulged in whenever a Chester sport could annex a Danish head. But eventually the supply of Danish heads gave out. But the sport had secured a stronghold on the exercise-loving Anglo-Saxons and a "balle of leather called a football" was substituted.

The game developed into a rough-and-tumble scrimmage, and the ball itself would often lie forgotten for hours while the excited players chased one another through alleys and lanes and even into the houses of the more respectable citizens as results of arguments over the rules. It seems that even before William the Conqueror invaded England the interpretation of the football rules was a much-mooted matter. Sconces were cracked, bones were broken and lives were lost. Yet the game spread in favor, and, jumping over the intervening centuries, is still spreading.

The modern school of football critics, just at present a subdued minority expressed by the public and the press, is not a whit more bitter than Philip Stubbs, a literary Briton, who way back in 1583 raked football of that day up and down, over and across in the following fashion:

As concerning football, I protest unto you it may rather be called a friendlie kind of a fight than a play or recreation, a bloody and murthring practice than a felowly sport or pastime. For doth not everyone lie in wait for his adversary, seeking to overthrew him and picke him on the nose, though it be on hard stones, or ditch or dale, or valley or hill, so he has him down, and he that can serve the most of this fashion is counted the only fellow, and who but he. So that by this means their necks are broken, sometimes their backs, sometimes their arms, sometimes their noses gush out with blood, sometimes their eyes start out; for they have the sleights to mix one between two, to dash him against the heart with their elbows, to butt him under the short ribs with their gripped fists, and with their knees to catch him on the hip and picke him on his neck with a hundred murthuring devices."

Good Selling Label.

Much amusement was caused at Masterton, New South Wales, at the way in which a Chinese named Ah Fong overreached himself in his greed. Ah Fong was watching the removal from a lorry of a consignment of miscellaneous articles destined for an auction room, when, pointing to a wooden case which was being carried inside, he inquired, in an excited tone, "How much?"

"I sell him to-morrow," replied the auctioneer.

"No time to-morrow," answered Ah Fong. "Me buy now," and he secured the case for sixteen pounds.

In half an hour the Celestial returned. For a time he was unable to speak for agitation. The outcome was ludicrous. It appears that the case bore an inscription in Chinese stating that it contained a hundred pounds' worth of opium. When Ah Fong opened the case he found another label at the bottom, which read: "Better luck next time."

A Freak of Nature.

While cutting up an ash-tree, eight feet in circumference, at Embleton Sawmill, Cumberland, Eng., the sawyers observed a dark object in the centre of the trunk. It was found to be a sparrow's nest containing the feathers and skeleton of a dead bird and four eggs. The egg-shells were exceedingly well preserved, but in the attempt to extricate them some were broken, and it was found that their contents had been entirely absorbed. It is assumed that the bird built its nest in the hollow of the tree and died while sitting on the eggs, the hole becoming sealed up as the tree grew. The nest had probably been built a century ago, the tree being over a hundred years old.

Professional Fit Thrower.

Professional poverty is a paying pursuit in London, and the strolling police know it. You may have noticed the lady who buries her head in her hands and howls on the steps of a west end restaurant. She is desolate and is in a fit. We run to her rescue, call the police. And when the lady has procured brandy and sun-dry contributions from the sympathetic public the constable explains that this is the lady who has nine fits a day. "And here's your cuffs, lady," says the constable, for the lady is careful to take off her clean cuffs before having her fit.—London Globe.

BEST LIKED MINISTER

RT. HON. LEWIS HAROURT IS POPULAR IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Secretary of State for the Colonies Who Has Figured in the Public Eye in Connection With South African Labor Troubles Learned Politics Under His Father—Is a Delightful Personality.

The Right Hon. Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, whose name has figured conspicuously in the communications between the Colonial officials and labor leaders over the South African labor troubles, is admitted to be personally the best liked man in the Asquith Cabinet. The late W. T. Stead once wrote of the handsome Colonial Secretary: "Though you may dislike his politics, you cannot help liking Lulu Harcourt, the able son of a very able father; in fact, whether in society, or in the House of Commons, or wherever you meet him, he is a delightful personality."

RT. HON. LEWIS HAROURT. Born in 1863 to the late Sir William, by his first wife, the Colonial Secretary, after Eton, underwent his political apprenticeship with his father, as his private secretary in the Liberal organization, and was for some time secretary of the Home Counties Liberal Federation. He was first elected for the Rossendale division of N. E. Lancashire in March, 1904. He was thoroughly at home in the Office of Works, but he could not frame a plural voting bill to please the House of Lords, and it was said at the time that he took no particular pains to do so. He was liked so well as a Minister by his chief that he was taken into the Cabinet as First Commissioner of Works, and in November, 1910, he was appointed Secretary of State for the Colonies.—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

The Kilt as Regenerator.

Sir James Crichton-Browne has been deplored the fact that there are so few perfect children in these days, and he has declared that the first practical step in the direction of making Medicis Venus and Belvedere Apollos is to drag all the flaws to light, as he is convinced that many of these are capable of correction or cure. Dr. Cantlie, the well-known authority on child life, has promptly taken up the suggestion. He informs the public that the direct cause of very many of the imperfections of childhood and youth is improper clothing. Babies are adequately protected in this respect, and as a result they are perfect reproductions in miniature of their race."

It is when the little boy is deprived of his swaddling clothes and is "breched" that the deterioration begins, and this is all due to the fact that the garments in which he is by custom and fashion habited do not provide sufficient warmth and protection to that part of the body which most needs these things. And of all garments in which we array our youths none is more severely condemned by Dr. Cantlie than the Etch jacket, "which ceases just where warmth is wanted." With the case as stated there can be no hesitation in pointing to the remedy. It is the kilt—which supplies in every detail all the requirements Dr. Cantlie desires in order that our boys may grow up braw lads. In Scotland's national garb we have indeed the regenerator of the race. Let the Kilt Society sound the pibroch loud and high!—Dundee Advertiser.

Will Establish Milk Depot

A large number of milk producers attended the meeting held in Calgary last week to organize a Dairymen's Association and to take steps to adjust their grievances.

One of the questions taken up was the big difference between the price the consumer pays and the price the producer gets for milk and it was the opinion that the retailer was getting all the cream of the business. This matter is to be gone into more fully by the Association.

The committee asked that the organization be made complete with all its officers and branches; that a competent milk expert be appointed to look after the milk shipped into the city and make the necessary tests, weight it, and also see that no one tampered with it; that arrangements be made with the C.P.R. to supply an adequate train service so that milk would be brought to the city at the proper time.

Several other suggestions were made and left for the Board of Directors to consider.

The following officers for the Association were elected: President, C. R. Robinson, Macleod; Vice-President, Mr. Cosworth, Cochrane; Directors, Messrs. Smith, Olds; Sly, Strathmore; Hall, Crossfield; McEachren, Cochrane; Laycock, Calgary.

The drafting of bylaws and the appointment of a permanent secretary, were left to the board of directors. It was also decided to arrange for a meeting with the C.P.R. and ascertain what can be done towards giving a better train service to carry milk to the city.

Westcott Items

(Too late for last week's issue)

The weather seemed to favor the Westcott people for their Easter exercises at the Evangelical church, quite a number attending, also a goodly few from Didsbury.

Miss Mona Wilson from north of Didsbury has been the guest of Miss Violet Hunsperger over the Easter holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Stringer and grandma Stringer were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hunsperger on Easter Sunday.

Mr. J. H. Braun has his leg hurt pretty badly. We have not heard how bad as yet; but hope it is not serious.

We think steps should be taken to organize a choir for the church as we have some very good singers, and a little bit of encouragement and not quite so much criticism would help a lot.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Murphy and R. Lening attended services at Didsbury Baptist church on Easter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Weidner were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Hunsperger Sunday evening.

Our teacher Miss Powell is attending the teachers convention at Lethbridge.

Mrs. Rose Stickney has been helping her sister Mrs. I. H. Levagood the past week.

Mr. Dan Habermahl took a flying trip through our burg on Sunday afternoon. What's the hurry Dan?

Miss Averil Murphy and two younger sisters, Geraldine and Doris were guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Hunsperger, on Sunday.

Mr. T. A. Murphy and Mr. I. H. Levagood attended the fat stock show in Calgary this week.

We wonder if our critic is ill or why we have heard no criticism this last week. Guess 'tis too hot for critics now.

We think 'tis awful nice to go no further than the road for mail. Some class to our rural route.

Farming will soon be the order of the day, but now 'tis mumps.

We wonder why Ed. is spending his Easter holidays in Calgary.

There is a report that Jimmy Hughes shot two lovely wild geese last week. We think that some of our Westcott people have had the proof of this. Wild geese is surely a delicacy here.

Wm. Robertson Passes Away

The many friends of William Robertson of Westerdale, will learn with sorrow that he died on Thursday last at the residence of his sister Mrs. W. J. McIntyre, in Didsbury, of tuberculosis. Mr. Robertson had been ill for three or four weeks but none of his friends expected his death which occurred rather suddenly. His age was 47 years and six months.

Deceased had been resident of the west for fifteen years, coming from Arnprior, Ont., to Manitoba where he resided for three years. He then moved out to Alberta with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McIntyre twelve years ago and has been a resident in this district ever since.

He leaves three brothers and four sisters to mourn his loss; Peter, James and John of Arnprior, Ont., Mrs. W. J. McIntyre, Didsbury, Alta., Annie and Mrs. W. Phillips and Mrs. J. Huckabee all of Arnprior. One brother, Donald, met an accidental death at Port Simpson, B. C., about seven years ago and both mother and father are dead.

The funeral services took place at the residence of his sister on Saturday afternoon and arrangements had been made to inter the remains in the Didsbury cemetery, but a telegram was received from the east asking the relatives here to ship them east for burial which was done on Saturday.

Mr. Robertson will be missed in his district because he was a good neighbor, willing at all times to help a friend in need although he was of a quiet, retiring disposition. Yes, Bill will be missed.

The very many friends of Mrs. W. J. McIntyre in this district also extend to her their sincere sympathy in the loss of her brother.

Bought Good Cattle

Several farmers in this district took advantage of the sale of bulls last week at Calgary to sell and also to buy some good stock. The bulls purchased are all of extra good breeding and should be a great acquisition to the dairy herds of the district and will also go a long way to raising the standard of cattle generally. Those who purchased bulls were as follows:

J. Hosegood bought a Shorthorn, paying $175.00; Godfrey Carlson, Shorthorn, 2 yr. old, $200.00; L. J. Fulkerth, Friesian Angus $80.00.

I. Levagood sold a bull for $235.00; which was a pretty good price considering the average was only $226.00 for this breed. This bull took fourth prize out of a bunch of 80. J. Hosgood also sold one for $75.00.

The highest price paid for a bull at this sale was $65.00. This animal of course was a cracking good beast and was owned by A. Fletcher, of Mound, who bought him two years ago for $125.00. He also sold two other bulls for $400 each.

Average prices paid for bulls were as follows: Aberdeen Angus $105.50; Ayrshires $60; Holstein-Friesian $78.30; Shorthorn $165.50; Herefords $226; Galloways (one only) $285.

Sugar Kills Microbes

Gallen, the "father of the medical art," attached great importance to the antisепtic properties of sugar, but his discovery has been hitherto ignored by doctors and surgeons. A German doctor has just published a treatise demonstrating the extraordinary antisепtic properties of pure cane sugar in the treatment of wounds, thus giving additional proof of the old adage that there is nothing new under the sun.

As a result of a number of experiments it is conclusively proved that a solution of sugar is one of the best disinfectants and sterilizers that can be found. The German doctor employed it successfully in a number of very grave cases. Its use was entirely beneficial and prevented putrefaction of wounds and contamination by microbes more efficaciously than any other medical antisepic.

The use of sugar as a preservative of liquids, especially of milk, is common enough but very few people were aware of the fact that it is a powerful microbe-killer.

"What became of your daschund?" asked the Grouch.

"My wife got so tired of swatting and she gave him away," replied the Old Fox.

the family remedy for Coughs and Colds small dose. Small bottle. Best since 1870.

A small boy had been given a penny with a hole in it. Handing it to a still smaller companion, he said:

"Jimmie, I dare you to go into that store and buy something with this penny."

Jimmie was quite willing. Entering boldly, he said:

"I want a doughnut." And, taking it, he hastily presented the penny.

"Here," said the clerk, "this penny has a hole in it."

"So has the doughnut," announced Jimmie, triumphantly, holding it up.—The Delineator.

The marine barracks at Washington were visited on one occasion by a party of young girls from a Delaware town, friends of the officers of the barracks. The party exhibited much interest in everything pertaining to the life and discipline of the post.

"What do you mean by 'taps'?" queried one of the young women.

"Taps is played every night on the bugle," answered the officer addressed. "It means lights out. They play it over the bodies of dead soldiers."

A puzzled look overspread the questioner's pretty face. Then she asked:

"What do you do if you haven't a dead soldier?"—Harper's Magazine.

Uncorker of Ocean Bottles

It is not many years since the high sounding post of uncorker of ocean News travelled slowly in Queen Elizabeth's time, and the first news she had of the taking of Nova Zembla by the Dutch was found in a bottle picked up by a Dutch fisherman named Donfield, who forwarded the message to the lord high admiral. Queen Elizabeth was struck by the idea and decreed that all bottles with inclosures found on the coast should be forwarded to the lord high admiral. Tonfield being appointed uncorker. The post survived for centuries.

Joint and Muscle Pains Banished by Nerviline

IT CURES RHEUMATISM

Thousands of people, chock full of the joy of living—happy, glad, bright people, that Nerviline has cured of their pains, all tell the same wonderful story of its power to drive out the aches and tortures of rheumatism and kindred ills.

"My goodness, but Nerviline is a miracle-worker," writes Mrs. Charlotte Chapman, mother of a well-known family residing at Mount Pleasant. "Last month I was so crippled up with sciatica and muscular rheumatism as to be almost unable to do a bit of housework. My joints were so stiff and the muscles so frightfully sore that I even cried at times with the pain. For years we have used Nerviline in our family and I just got busy with this wonderful, good old liniment. Lots of rubbing with Nerviline soon relieved my misery and I was in a real short time about my work as usual."

No matter where the ache is, no matter how distressing the pain you can rub it away with Nerviline. For forty years it has been curing hunchback, sciatica, backache, colds, cest trouble and all sorts of winter ills. Keep a large 50c. family size bottle handy and you'll be saved lots of trouble and have smaller doctor bills. Small trial size, 25c., at dealers everywhere.

Patient—Doctor, can't you diagnose my case—can't you tell what is the matter with me?

Doctor—Madame, I regret to inform you that I cannot. Nothing short of an autopsy will reveal that.

Patient—Then go right ahead with it, doctor, this is no time for me to display false modesty.—New York Sun.

"Fred, do you remember where you were in 1910?" asked the bride of a few months.

"Why, no, dear, I don't remember exactly," replied the young husband. "Why do you ask?"

"Why, I was reading today in the paper that it is said that in 1910 one person in every 800 in the United States was in prison."

Many Prehistoric Remains

During dredging operations in the river stream at Marlow, England, a piece of bone, two horns, and a portion of an antler were raised from the peaty soil about two feet below the river bed. The bone and horns belong to an extinct prehistoric animal, and the antler to an animal which, it is stated, lived about 10,000 years ago.

SPRING BLOOD IS WATERY BLOOD

How to Get New Health and New Strength at This Season

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Confinement indoors, often in over-heated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the schools, taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of languor. Others are low-spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions, while some get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed.

Many people take purgative medicines in the spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. This is all that a purgative does.

What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood, and soothe the jangled nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

These pills not only banish spring weakness, but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anæmia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism and other diseases due to bad blood.

Mrs. Freeman Leslie, Greenwich, N. S., writes: "We have found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the very best family medicine there is. I was completely run-down and could not sleep or do my work. I was very nervous and the least sound startled me. I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they soon brought me back to the best of good health. They also cured my husband when he was suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism."

If you are ailing this spring you cannot afford, in your own interest, to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How To Take Good Care of Your Hair

Nothing spoils your good looks so much as homely hair—stringy, dull-colored, harsh. Nothing does good looks so much as beautiful hair—soft, silky, wavy and glossy. No matter how beautiful your hair is now, you can improve its good looks by using Harmony Hair Beautifier. If your hair is homely and ugly now, Harmony Hair Beautifier will make it softer, silkier, glossier, more beautiful in every way, and easier to put up and "stay put." Its rich rose odor hides the unpleasant oily smell of the hair. It is rightly named; it beautifies the hair.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair. To keep hair and scalp dandruff free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. H. W. Chambers, Didsbury.

Building Activity

Strangers coming into town on Monday morning might have thought that the yellow peril had struck town and that Didsbury was being heavily bombarded. However, we hasten to assure them that this was not so. It was only one of Didsbury's growing pains finding vent in noise. They were blasting out the foundations and cellar for the big new Golden West Hotel with dynamite.
